TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The customer/generator confirms that all waste materials removed from the service location, including used cooking oil, grease, FOGS (fats, oils, grease, and solids), wastewater, and any related substances, are non-hazardous at the time of collection. In the event that any waste is later designated or classified as hazardous by any regulatory authority, the customer/generator assumes full responsibility for all associated disposal costs, fines, penalties, damages, and claims arising from such reclassification.

The Grease Company and its authorized affiliates shall not be liable for any losses, damages, expenses, or liabilities resulting from the collection, handling, transportation, or disposal of the above-mentioned materials. The customer/generator agrees to indemnify, defend, and hold harmless The Grease Company, its employees, agents, and affiliates against any third-party claims, actions, or demands related to the services rendered or the materials collected.

All equipment and storage containers provided by The Grease Company, including but not limited to used cooking oil containers, remain the sole property of The Grease Company. The customer agrees to keep such equipment safe, secure, and protected from loss, damage, or theft. In the event of service termination or cancellation, the customer shall allow up to twenty (20) business days for The Grease Company to retrieve its equipment. The customer is responsible for the full replacement cost of any lost, stolen, or damaged equipment or containers.
